

President's Message

Hello everyone and welcome to our November newsletter.

Our EGM is taking place online on Friday 5th December 2025 and details can be found in this newsletter. You are encouraged to take part either on the night or by submitting your proxy vote in advance.

Our big ongoing project to modernise and redevelop Elgin Museum has taken some positive steps forward. Thanks to support from the National Lottery Heritage Fund, Christine Pert has been appointed to the role of Redevelopment Project Manager, whilst Carenza Murray is now well established as Inventory Manager with more than 10,000 items inventoried already! We are confident that these two experienced and enthusiastic people will help us drive our aspirations forward at a faster pace than we could do otherwise.

Also in positive vein, our Archaeology Conference in September was a great success, which included online attendance for the first time, with lots of good feedback from attendees. However, as well as attending and speaking at the conference, we are especially grateful to the AOC Archaeology Group for their financial support with the event.

Another recent positive occasion was our October School Holiday LEGO™ workshop in collaboration with Historic Environment Scotland. This is a good example of the Museum working with others in central Elgin to promote increased interest and enjoyment in local heritage and culture. Some of the models created are now on display in No3 High Street, Elgin Library and the Elgin Cathedral shop.

However, the recent period has also been tinged with sadness following the deaths of museum volunteer Rod Oliver and Society member and former volunteer Linda Duncan. As we are aware, the Society and the Museum depend entirely upon volunteers, so both are sorely missed, and we acknowledge the important contributions that they made during their time. We naturally hope that their efforts will be honoured by new volunteers coming forward to fill the gaps that they leave behind.

With regards,
Nick

Obituaries

Linda Duncan

As most of you will know, we sadly had to inform Moray Society Members of recent death of a long-time member, Linda Duncan. Linda always showed a great interest in the happenings within the Museum and was a frequent visitor even after she gave up her volunteering role with us. Linda died in October and her funeral was attended by many fellow Members. She will be sadly missed by all of us.

Rod Oliver

We were also saddened to hear of the death of Rod Oliver, a keen member of the Learning and Outreach Team in the Museum. Rod joined as a member of the 'meet and greet' team but his outgoing demeanour quickly marked him out as a member of learning and outreach where he was very popular with old and young visitors alike. Rod died in September, and several volunteers attended his funeral at St Margaret's Episcopal Church, Lossiemouth. All of us will miss Rod's happy face and his laughter ringing out around the museum.

Convenor's Corner

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the members and volunteers who have supported us over the last few months. With limited public opening over the summer, we have continued to facilitate visits by individuals, families and community groups wherever possible. Over our three open weekends during the summer, we had a total of 500 visitors, including guests from the USA, France, Australia, Mexico, the Czech Republic, Germany, Canada, New Zealand, Romania, and Hong Kong. Comments left in the Visitor Book included:

"The staff were fantastic and very enthusiastic!"

"I loved it, very interesting exhibitions, lovely staff!"

"Very interesting, thank you for the effort and time of volunteers too!"

"Beautiful space and collection! The staff were wonderful!"

More recent visitors have included distant relatives of John Shanks (from New Zealand) who were delighted that we could help fill a gap in their family history, service users from the North East Sensory Service, and occupational therapy groups from the NHS. School visits have also continued, and, since the summer, we've run Victorian themed activities for West End Primary and sessions highlighting 'Old Elgin' for Bishopmill Primary school. None of this would be possible without our Meet & Greet and Learning & Outreach teams so do consider joining us if meeting and working with people of all ages and abilities sounds like fun!

I'm also extremely grateful to the members of the Management Committee who support the day-to-day running of the Museum and who have a less visible role to play. There is nothing glamorous about emptying hoppers filled with dead leaves, ensuring that the emergency lights are fit for purpose, or that the fire exits remain clear, but such tasks ensure that we are all able to use the building safely. Work also continues to ensure that our policies and procedures are up to date and meet sector guidelines. These tasks are also less than thrilling but are necessary to ensure, for example, that we can continue to accept Treasure Trove finds. If you're organised and a stickler for detail, the Documentation Subgroup would love to hear from you!

In the past, we've had small team of volunteers working with collections, but this is largely in abeyance whilst the Inventory Project progresses. Carenza brings a wealth of experience from her time at the British Museum so is working methodically through the vast array of objects that we hold. In the meantime, Claire is working to re-box and move archaeological material from the cellar, Edwina is reviewing storage of the costume collection (a role which she carried out in a previous job at Horsham Museum), and Louise is cataloguing a collection of WWII photographs from an Elgin airman shot down over Germany in 1943 and incarcerated in Stalag Luft 1. Having reviewed our extensive holdings of butterflies and moths, Martin is now turning his attention to stabilising the cabinets. This and other ongoing activity by the Collections Management Group will mean that we can safely move objects out of the Museum once we can start work on the building... Rationalisation is an important part the Inventory process. Off-site storage is expensive so we need to ensure that we are not spending vast sums of money to store items unnecessarily but, of course, we recognise that much of our collection will merit storage in appropriate climatically controlled conditions.

We are all working to ensure that Elgin Museum comes through what will be a challenging few months (and years) and to ensure that we have a Museum fit for purpose for the next two hundred years!

Management Committee Convenor

Update on Peru

The Peruvian momía (mummified young woman) is still with us, discreetly behind her curtain. It was most interesting that the first thing Pat Allan wanted to do when she visited is to say hello, if not in the momía's dialect, but at least as a person of South American heritage. Pat, a Curator Emerita with Glasgow museums, has been given authority by the Moray Society Board to research on our behalf as to where and how return could happen. She has personal contacts in the relevant cultural organisations in Peru. Although the original request for return came via the Embassy in London, once again communication has ceased at that level. Elgin Museum is a member of the Museums Galleries Scotland (MGS) Restitution and Repatriation Group which has been charged by the Scottish Government to address these issues in the museum sector – which is how Pat came to offer her help. There does seem to be some progress by the group to engage practically, as well as just theoretically with the ethical issues, with museums engaged in the complex legal and financial negotiations for returns.

We continue to work with Neil Curtis, Aberdeen University, now Chair of the MGS group. The other research visitor to see the momía recently, was Dr Chris Heaney, on a sabbatical from the Pennsylvanian State University. He has an interest in pre-Columbian material in museums and so also spent time with our archives looking at the context of her arrival in 1846 – and is now in contact also with Pat.

Archaeology

Elgin Museum Archaeology Conference, Saturday 13th September 2025
Breaking New Ground: sharing archaeological discoveries from Moray

It was great to be hosting again a conference themed on one of the Museum's key collections, with speakers, leaders in their field and an audience of keen professionals and those with a broad interest in Moray's story. The Alexander Graham Bell Centre, Moray College, UHI) is an ideal venue – the catering was good, the virtual conference ran snag-free (with Claire at the keyboard) and feedback has been positive. We hope that we may be able to add the individual talks to the Museum's YouTube channel and to be producing a printed copy of the Proceedings as a record of the fascinating updates from the lectures and the discussions.

Janet Trythall, Archaeology Volunteer

Conference feedback:

"brilliant organisation, this is one of the best hybrid conferences I've attended. I feel like I'm actually in the room!"

"a fantastic conference - I've enjoyed the whole day"

"Never mind the number of archaeological conferences available in Scotland, it is the extraordinary quality of presentations, the remarkable detail, the huge range and the immense value of everything that is going on and is then presented. My congratulations go to all those involved throughout the country. I had no idea 16 years ago when we moved here, that there would be so many invaluable opportunities to learn and discover. Thank you!"

Elgin Museum Big LEGO™ Build 2025 24th and 25th October 2025

During the October holidays, we were delighted to welcome Fiona Davidson, Historic Environment Scotland Learning Officer, and LEGO™ Master Builder Alistair for the Big LEGO™ Build 2025. Over two days around 90 people (of all ages!) built life-size models of a selection of objects from our collection, all out of LEGO™. All of the replica objects created are on display at No 3 High St, in Elgin Library and at the Elgin Cathedral giftshop (no entrance fee required to access the shop!). A huge thankyou to all of our enthusiastic LEGO™ builders for creating such fantastic models!

Geology

Clashach stone helps to construct the world's tallest church.

As Moray Society members may know sandstone from Clashach Quarry, near Hopeman, has provided building stone to help construct the Barcelona basilica, the Sagrada Familia. Recently, the basilica has been declared the world's tallest church and although Clashach is only one of around 60 types of stone used it must be quite an honour for Tennants Quarries Ltd to be involved in the project. Clashach began to be used about 15-20 years ago as the Barcelona Montjuic quarries were starting to run out of stone and after a world-wide search our local sandstone was chosen as a replacement.

This summer, Clashach Quarry was in full swing providing a large amount of stone for the project, blasting for fresh stone occurred in July, and around 120 blocks, chest freezer to garden shed sized, were collected on the quarry floor. For any Elgin Museum Geology Group members interested in fossil reptile trackways from the Permian period, around 255 million years ago, this provided a huge opportunity to photograph and record any prints coming to light. So, I was in the quarry 3-4 times a week together with rulers, brushes and bottles of water, these blocks can be very grubby and many need a good scrub before tracks are revealed! I'd estimate a good 20% of the blocks contained prints or trackways. The following photographs show just four examples of tracks found this summer with one block showed evidence of a small herd of reptiles moving through the area, top left photo.

Interestingly, only one trackway showed evidence of tail drag, something Clashach is known for, whereas there were numerous examples of small reptiles with clawed tracks and larger sized tracks were conspicuous by their absence. We'll never know exactly which creatures made these tracks apart from saying Permian creatures such as dicynodonts and reptiles were likely contenders, scientists continually change trackmaker species, ichnospecies in the case of trace fossils, and the point is that nobody really knows unless an actual body fossil is found at the end of the trackway, science meeting the dark arts!

The Moray Society Prize Draw

Moray Society members (over-18 only) have exclusive access to the Moray Society Prize Draw.

The Prize Draw has been running since April 2000 and has raised over £8000 for Elgin Museum. This helps with the day to day running costs and the Society is very grateful for this income. Sales of the Draw tickets are strictly limited to Moray Society members and income from the sale of tickets is paid directly into the Moray Society Prize Draw account. All proceeds are used for the exclusive benefit of the Moray Society.

Tickets are priced at £10 each per annum and are valid for four draws. Draws are held quarterly with prizes of £25, £15 and £10 respectively for the first three numbers drawn, in sequence, at each draw. These prizes are based on an income of £1000 in tickets sold i.e. 100 tickets.

Many members have annual standing orders with their banks, which greatly reduces our costs. Standing orders can only be amended or cancelled by the persons concerned. Mandates for standing orders are included on the application form. Cash, or cheques made payable to the Moray Society Prize Draw, are also accepted.

There is no limit imposed by the Society on the number of tickets that may be held by individual members. Please email me at the museum for queries about the draw – an application form is included below, or can be downloaded from our website: <https://elginmuseum.org.uk/membership/join/>
